

What is different is that the President has a strong record on the science of this issue, and the Republican leadership does not. The President called on the National Academy of Sciences for advice. The Republican leadership has ridiculed the Academy as political because it does not like their scientific judgment. The President continues to seek the advice of experts through the National Academy of Sciences and through advisory committees. The Republican leadership continues to fret about what a fair and accurate census might do to their attempts to manipulate the redistricting process.

Right now, the Census Monitoring Board is a political entity because the Republican leadership made it that way. But it does not have to continue in that vein. Let me put forward four principles that, if adopted, could make the monitoring board a bipartisan operation.

First, all personnel hired to work for the monitoring board other than the executive directors, have to be hired with the agreement of both executive directors.

Second, all work done by board employees has to be approved by both executive directors.

Third, any press release, publication, or statement attributed to the board has to have the approval of both chairs before released.

Fourth, any funds expended by the board have to be approved by the two chairs.

If the Republican appointees on the Board will agree to these four principles, the board can proceed in a bipartisan manner.

If they refuse to agree with these principles, it is a clear indication that their agenda is to conduct partisan political activities and try to use the monitoring board to legitimize their partisan agenda.

I ask the Chairman of the Census Subcommittee to join me in calling for the Census Monitoring Board to accept these four principles.

His willingness to join me in supporting these principles will also send a signal that he too is interested in fact and not fiction.

LET US REMEMBER THE ARMENIAN GENOCIDE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California (Mr. HORN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. HORN. Mr. Speaker, as we near the dawn of a new millennium, many people have begun reviewing the events of the past 1,000 years. In the year 1000, Europe was only just beginning to rise from the Dark Ages, but the advances of the enlightenment were still centuries away. Life was still brutish and short, marked by random violence and terrible purges from time to time. We like to look at history and see a steady improvement in the condition of mankind. We would prefer to believe that humanity today bears little resemblance to the near barbarism that marked the last millennial change.

Sadly, as we narrow our focus and look back at the 20th century, we see that many of the horrors that marked the 10th and 11th centuries still exist in our world. This century has seen horrors on a scale that even the cruellest leaders of the beginning of this millennium could not have imagined. More than 100 million people have been savagely murdered in this century. It is disheartening that many in the present day continue to hide or diminish these events of sheer terror.

In our lifetime, we have seen the genocide of Stalin, of Mao, of Hitler, of Pol Pot, and a large number of lesser known despots; the Nazi Holocaust against the Jews.

The practice of genocide certainly was rooted in the efforts of the Turks to destroy the Armenian people 83 years ago. At that time, the Ottoman Empire began a movement that would ultimately kill more than 1.5 million Armenians, and it left deep scars upon those who survived, scars that continue to exist today.

What is so disheartening is that not only did this awful travesty occur but today the effort to cover it up or diminish this awful event continues. Mankind is capable of forgiveness, but it requires an acknowledgment by the guilty party of that guilt and a desire for contrition. Unfortunately, the government of Turkey wants to escape its guilty by blaming the Ottomans and has made no effort at reconciliation.

Mr. Speaker, Turkey not only denies responsibility for its past action but has continued efforts to cause hardship in Armenia by blocking U.S. assistance from reaching Armenia and generally trying to obstruct closer relations between the United States and Armenia. Turkey is our ally and has helped further the security of the United States and Europe. It would be unfair to leave this unacknowledged. But it would also be unfair to ignore a serious issue that does affect our mutual relations.

By accepting its responsibility, Turkey can help show that, while horrible events still take place, mankind has advanced to the point that we acknowledge and atone for these awful actions.

Mr. Speaker, I want to extend my appreciation to the Members of this body who have done so much to prevent the world from forgetting the atrocities of 83 years ago, and to the many Armenian American organizations throughout the Nation, and in particular California, for their good work on behalf of the Armenian American community and to foster closer ties between the United States and Armenia.

Let us remember. Let us never forget.

RECOGNIZING THE SACRIFICE OF THE CREW OF THE U.S.S. INDIANAPOLIS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Indiana (Ms. CARSON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. CARSON. Mr. Speaker, today several of my colleagues and I join 12-year-old Hunter Scott in his outstanding efforts to correct an injustice dealt to the skipper and crew of a World War II battle cruiser. The U.S.S. Indianapolis was torpedoed and sunk just before the end of the war, in the U.S. Navy's worst disaster at sea.

Hunter Scott, a 7th grader at Ransom Middle School of Cantonment, Florida, researched the story of the U.S.S. Indianapolis as a school history project. This week, today, he came to Washington to ask Congress to exonerate Charles McVay, the ship's captain, who was court-martialed for the loss of the ship.

Hunter has been able to do what adults have been unable to do for 53 years. He has drawn attention to the story of the Indianapolis, and now we are preparing to give the crew and captain of the ship the recognition that they so rightfully deserve.

The U.S.S. Indianapolis was sunk by a Japanese submarine in 1945 after delivering the components of the atom bomb to Tinian Island in the Pacific. Only 316 of the 1,916 soldiers who served on the U.S.S. Indianapolis survived to be rescued.

The crew was adrift at sea without lifeboats, food, or water for 4½ days. More than 500 were eaten by sharks or succumbed to injuries or the elements. During this time, the failure of the ship to arrive in port at the Philippines went totally unnoticed. The ship's Captain, Charles B. McVay III, was convicted in a 1946 court-martial. He was the first U.S. naval officer ever to be tried and convicted following the loss of his ship in combat. McVay committed suicide in 1968.

Captain McVay's conviction was based on the fact that he failed to zigzag the ship, but his superiors never gave him information that a Japanese submarine was patrolling the area. In addition, the Japanese captain of the submarine said before the trial that he would have sunk the ship even if it had been zigzagging.

Evidence suggests that the Navy made McVay a scapegoat for the embarrassing loss of the ship and tragic death of most of the crew. Because McVay's court-martial severely tarnished the ship's reputation, the crew of the Indianapolis has gone without recognition for 53 years.

Today, my colleague and I introduced legislation to reverse this injustice to Captain McVay and the crew of the U.S.S. Indianapolis. The enactment of the bill would exonerate Captain McVay of the responsibility for sinking the U.S.S. Indianapolis. It would express the sense of Congress that the court-martial conviction of McVay was a grave injustice. It urges the President to grant a posthumous pardon to Captain McVay and expresses the sense of Congress that the President not only award a Presidential Unit Citation to the crew of the U.S.S. Indianapolis in recognition of their courage and fortitude but it waives any time limit applicable to such a situation.

Twelve of the survivors of the sinking of the U.S.S. Indianapolis came to
